

Share How You're Doing with Your Supervisor

Communication is key in any relationship

A healthy relationship with your supervisor improves your mood at work. This makes you a more motivated worker and a productive contributor to your organization.

It may not feel natural at first but try to have a conversation with your supervisor about your personal life. You'll likely find something you have in common, share a laugh, or at the very least relax for a few moments instead of worrying about the status of your current project.

Reasons to share

- Encourages collaboration
- Allows for motivation
- Enhances problem solving.
